1. INTRODUCCIÓN

Las startups hoy nos resultan a todos familiares, sobre todo a la hora de hablar de emprendimiento y tecnología en cualquier ámbito empresarial.

Aunque es un término que desde hace tres o cuatro años se emplea con mayor frecuencia, en realidad es algo de que algunos –entre ellos nosotros en Dosdoce– hemos venido hablando desde hace años al compartir y analizar la relación de las nuevas tecnologías con, en nuestro caso, el sector cultural y ahora en concreto con el sector editorial y en el mundo del libro, en general.

Detectar, conocer y compartir nuevas empresas (startups) que han irrumpido o pueden irrumpir en el mundo del libro ha sido y es una de nuestras labores. Algunas de ellas no se han creado directamente con la intención de ser herramientas o empresas tecnológicas pensadas para mejorar al sector o ayudarlo en esta transición digital –más bien ya inmersos en la digitalización–; no obstante, también las hemos dado a conocer en nuestro blog (hoy 'tendencias'), en diversos estudios, informes y conferencias.

Esa una de las particularidades de la digitalización: saber aplicar lo que puede ser útil en nuestro sector mirando lo que se hace en y para otros sectores. A veces, incluso, mirando a startups que no han sido creadas, en principio, para un sector concreto (como las apps de mensajería que han acabado siendo una herramienta fundamental para el marketing online, por ejemplo).

Ante tal disparidad de nuevas empresas e iniciativas que en algún momento se propusieron innovar en algún aspecto, y con el propósito de profundizar en la nueva relación entre estas startups y el sector editorial, en 2013 publicamos un informe –‘Cómo colaborar con Startups’– cuyo objetivo era convertirse en un documento de debate y reflexión sobre cómo mejorar las relaciones entre las startups tecnológicas y las empresas del mundo del libro (editoriales, librerías, bibliotecas, etc.) con el fin de establecer conjuntamente áreas de colaboración estratégica.

En aquel informe quedaba claro que el futuro del sector editorial pasaba por el entendimiento y la colaboración entre las editoriales y las startups, es decir, entre la parte más tradicional del sector y las empresas ‘nativas digitales’ con el fin de aprovechar mejor las oportunidades de negocio que ofrece Internet. La principal ventaja competitiva en la era digital es la creación de economías de escala a través de la agregación de tecnologías, contenidos y servicios. Por tanto, estas alianzas se han demostrado necesarias –si no imprescindibles– para el crecimiento del sector.

Tras este estudio, Thad McIlroy –involucrado desde finales de los 90 en el trabajo de empresas tecnológicas aplicadas al mundo del libro, tanto como inversor como consultor–, sacaba a finales de 2016 el informe ‘An Authoritative Look at Book Publishing Startups In the United States’, donde se da una relación actual de cerca de 900 startups en relación al mundo del libro y que se comenzó a compilar a principios de 2012.

La lista actualizada que aporta Thad y que acompaña a este documento ahora también actualizada por nosotros) nace conjuntamente con una lista que Michael Bashkar ya había comenzado, de modo que en ese momento ambos estaban en la misma labor recopilatoria. Por tanto se puede decir que la lista de este último es el punto de partida. La primera versión de McIlroy vio la luz en 2014 e incluía ya 600 startups, frente a la versión definitiva sobre la que hemos trabajado nosotros y que, como hemos adelantado, ya alcanzaba casi las 900 compañías tecnológicas.

El informe de Thad ofrece una detallada cartografía de las startups cuyo enfoque o modelo de negocio se dirige al sector editorial de Estados Unidos; es decir, la gran mayoría de las startups de la lista de McIlroy están afincadas en Estados Unidos, si bien se incluyen algunas startups internacionales que circunscriben a los Estados Unidos como un mercado objetivo principal. Según el propio Thad, el origen de tal compilación no fue otro que, tras preguntarse el estado de las estas empresas tecnológicas en el sector, pronto quiso profundizar y saber cuántas existían y de qué tipo.

En Dosdoce hemos querido darle un enfoque más global (fijándonos sobre todo en el espectro español y latinoamericano, sumando también algunas iniciativas europeas que nos parecen destacables), y quizá un punto más tecnológico a la hora de establecer la relación de startups (de 900 han pasado a 1.130 startups). Una revisión con la esperanza de que otras consultoras o entidades de diferentes países continúen la labor de completarla en la medida de lo posible.

Con la perspectiva de estos años, todos podemos reconocer cuánto ha cambiado la escena. Con esta instantánea general de esta lista se ha querido estimular nuevas ideas, retomar el debate e incluso a conseguir una mayor voluntad de inversión. Recordemos que en nuestro estudio 'Cómo colaborar con startups', una de las conclusiones era que las empresas de capital riesgo señalaban que las startups del sector cultural no generaban grandes operaciones de salida, como en otros sectores (muchas veces por desconocimiento del propio sector), si bien los propios emprendedores y responsables de startups veían ya entonces un mayor potencial en esta industria. No obstante, a día de hoy podemos ver que, en general, las empresas del ámbito cultural aún están lejos de situarse en los primeros puestos de los sectores donde más invierte el capital riesgo.

2. RELACIÓN DE STARTUPS

El núcleo del informe es una hoja Excel que incluye unas 1.130 empresas, en su mayoría fundadas desde que Amazon lanzó el Kindle en 1997, como hemos adelantado. Dicha hoja de cálculo enumera no sólo el nombre de las startups, también se señala:

- Breve descripción de la empresa
- Tipo de producto o servicio que ofrece
- Financiación
- Estado actual del negocio
- País de origen

Otros datos igualmente importantes que aporta el informe y que definen el alcance de la industria del libro son:

- Total de fondos recaudados por todas las startups
- Promedio de fondos de financiación por empresa

- Media de inversión por empresa
- Porcentaje de startups con fondos declarados
- Porcentaje de startups ya no están operativas
- Porcentaje de salidas / adquisiciones / fusiones / pivotaciones
- Número de Startups con oferta pública de venta (OPV)

Estos datos intentan ofrecer la medida de cuán significativa es la actividad de las startups en la industria del libro en todos sus aspectos. La tabla Excel da la medida de tal actividad y del creciente alcance que está teniendo la entrada de startups en el sector.

3. DESGLOSE POR ESPECIALIZACIÓN

En cuanto al modo de categorizar las startups detectadas, este es el desglose por especialización, de mayor a menor:

- Herramientas y servicios: 340
- Contenido original: 166
- Venta al por menor (retail): 106
- Social: 84
- Descubrimiento: 91
- Educación: 66
- Infantil: 59
- eReaders: 52
- Marketing: 53
- Libros de texto: 32
- Gratuidad: 31
- Audio: 23
- Suscripción: 19
- Otros: 9

Total: 1.131

Estas categorías podrían ser mucho más específicas, pero se ha preferido acotarlas a las mencionadas en la hoja de cálculo que acompaña para hacerlo más sencillo. Por ejemplo, la categoría “herramientas y servicios” acoge desde startups de conversión de PDF a ePub, hasta plataformas para publicar en la nube y autoedición. Es decir, herramientas y servicios que sirven a distribuidores, minoristas, autores y lectores.

La referencia a las categorías “social” o “descubrimiento” se basa sobre todo en las que da la propia descripción de cada empresa. Mucha gente parece tener dudas a la hora de decidir qué libro leer, pero esto ha comenzado a dejar de ser un problema con la ayuda de alguna de estas startups enfocadas a diferentes maneras de descubrir nuevas lecturas.

4. ¿QUÉ ENTENDEMOS POR STARTUPS EN EL MUNDO DEL LIBRO?

Dado que este breve informe, guía y listado se refiere a las startups, conviene señalar a qué nos estamos refiriendo al hablar de startups para libros o en el mundo del libro en este caso. Una startup, en términos muy generales, es un nuevo negocio emergente, una compañía que está arrancando.

En nuestro caso, más concretamente, nos referiríamos a un nuevo tipo de negocio, una compañía que aporta un enfoque algo diferente y novedoso; es decir, asociado a la innovación, también con un importante componente tecnológico en su ADN, y sujetas a capital riesgo, con necesidad de inversión para arrancar o terminar una fase de desarrollo beta, al menos.

Las aceleradoras o incubadoras son términos asociados a las startups: espacios y programas donde se les da el empuje necesario a estas empresas emergentes. Pearson en el sector editorial/educativo, o el New York Times en el de las publicaciones crearon sus propios espacios que actúan como incubadoras para ayudar a startups en sus respectivos sectores.

Las startups en el sector son tan diversas como diversos son el tipo editoriales existentes. Sin embargo, llama la atención que muchas de las últimas startups no están ya tanto enfocadas la parte comercial de las editoriales, para el marketing o la promoción de libros, así como para editoriales infantiles, que hay muchas y muy variadas –como la mayoría de proyectos que comenzamos a detectar en un principio–, sino que se dirigen a los autores independientes y a la autoedición (que en la tabla están en la categoría genérica de ‘herramientas y servicios’), y no tanto a las editoriales, insistimos. Tantas que ya representan casi mayoría dentro de la categoría ‘herramientas y servicios’.

Para el listado se ha considerado startups a compañías que se crearon desde 1997 en adelante, ya que hay compañías que por aquel entonces supusieron un importante elemento disruptivo o al menos ‘influenciador’ en el sector. Decidir qué compañías se pueden considerar startups en relación al mundo del libro no siempre es fácil, sobre todo en los primeros años, como señala McIlroy.

Las de los últimos años, las que han sido desarrolladas claramente para dar servicio o apoyo a editoriales y otros eslabones del sector, son más fáciles de detectar. En muchos casos porque ellas mismas han nacido con voluntad de pertenecer a este sector, y no tanto por haber sido adoptadas o adaptadas al mercado del mundo de los libros, como hemos comentado en el comienzo.

En el caso concreto de la edición educativa y/o académica existen diferentes niveles de innovación, desde las más tradicionales hasta las que comienzan a introducir diferentes modelos de negocio para monetizar los contenidos, si bien son las menos.

En el caso de la categoría de ‘edición infantil’ sí se han incluido aquellas compañías que han desarrollado su modelo con la intención de repensar la creación de los libros impresos para niños o que han creado proyectos e ideas diferentes (educación, entretenimiento, interactividad) en formatos digitales. Es decir, las que han aportado algo más que una sencilla digitalización de contenidos. No obstante, hay que señalar que en ocasiones la frontera entre 'educación' e 'infantil' como categorías es muy estrecha.

Las apps móviles también hacen su aparición, si bien es cierto que el enorme impulso y actividad que pudimos ver en este campo hace unos años se ha visto frenado en estos últimos tiempos, si bien sigue habiendo iniciativas nuevas y valiosas para la lectura en dispositivos móviles. Muchas de ellas, precisamente, en el ámbito de la edición infantil y educativa para los primeros años de formación de los niños.

5. EL VERDADERO VALOR DE LA DISRUPCIÓN Y LA INNOVACIÓN EN EL MUNDO DEL LIBRO

Si miramos los antecedentes de las startups relacionadas con el sector, no tenemos que mirar más que al mismo Internet, luego a Apple o Facebook para ver que han sido tan disruptivos en este sector como en muchos otros.

Para pensar en las primeras startups en el mundo del libro hay que pensar en un elemento que haya sido realmente disruptivo en él, es decir, el elemento que ha transformado totalmente un sector tan tradicional como el editorial, que llevaba siglos sin apenas sufrir un cambio significativo, salvo quizá la entrada de la informática e Internet. Pero esto, insistimos, afectó a todos los sectores, y no al editorial en particular. El elemento eminentemente disruptor del mundo del libro ha sido sin duda Amazon.

Cuando Amazon dejó de ser sólo un tienda al por menor de libros, en principio de segunda mano, para poner su mirada y esfuerzos en el formato digital en relación directa al Kindle, fue el momento en el que legitimaron la posibilidad de la disrupción total en el sector editorial. Ha demostrado que podía hacerlo, y ha abierto la puerta para que otros aceleren la transformación del sector. Las reacciones a la defensiva de la parte tradicional del negocio (dejando ahora al margen las lógicas querellas sobre precios y presiones abusivas del ahora gigante global) parecían demostrar que Amazon tenía razón en cuanto a su potencial disruptor. Para bien o para mal, pero ya está hecho y ha sido un punto de inflexión definitivo para todo el sector.

El impulso final en toda esta transformación del sector ha sido sin duda –y así lo hemos señalado en diversas ocasiones a través de las Tendencias en Dosdoce– el crecimiento del móvil desde el lanzamiento del primer iPhone en 2007, pocos meses antes del Kindle. El iPhone condujo al iPad que a su vez condujo a otra serie de tabletas diferentes. Ahora la lectura digital está disponible en una amplia gama de dispositivos, siendo el móvil la que más crece como herramienta de lectura general, y fundamental en los países en desarrollo, según la propia UNESCO.

6. EL COSTE DE LA INNOVACIÓN

Muchas de las startups que hace años vimos crecer hoy ya no existen. Otras han pivotado y se han reconvertido. Las tasas de “fracaso” en las startups son altas, del mismo modo que hay muchas editoriales nuevas que no llegan a cumplir los 5 años de actividad. La idea de “fracaso” es relativa (por eso la emprendimos), dado que muchas empresas que no terminan de germinar son el germen de otras que sí funcionan. La experiencia adquirida hace que cada paso o fase construyan proyectos más sólidos, en ocasiones pasando de los contenidos a los servicios, o del B2C al B2B, o viceversa.

También depende de qué determine lo que es y no es una startup. Si su propia fundación o registro, o un mínimo de financiación que abale su estatus. Como señala Thad, en CB Insights han prestado mucha atención a estas cuestiones y señalan que las razones de las caídas de las startups son sorprendentemente difíciles de identificar en un principio. Muchas startups están paradas, o incluso muertas, pero siguen pululando, con un nivel de actividad a medio gas. En CB Insights encontraron que el 55% de las startups fallidas llegaron a recaudar 1 millón de dólares, o algo menos. El 71% de las desaparecidas duró menos de dos años después de su última ronda de financiación. Lo mismo que duran algunas editoriales, y sin tanta financiación externa.

El análisis de ‘empresas fallidas’ en el informe de CB Insights encontraron que la principal razón para el “fracaso” fue la falta de una necesidad real para su producto en el mercado (42%) seguido por la falta de inversión (29%). En términos generales, la Oficina de Estadísticas Laborales de Estados Unidos mostró que la mayoría de las empresas que caen lo hacen en los dos primeros años (34%). Después de 4 años, el 56% acaba cayendo.

7. OPORTUNIDADES PARA LAS STARTUPS EN LA INDUSTRIA DEL LIBRO, Y VICEVERSA

Como hemos señalado en diversas ocasiones al hablar de innovación y modelos de negocio, no hay una solución segura o única para todos los casos. Lo que sí que es más evidente es que la principal ventaja competitiva en la era digital es la creación de economías de escala a través de la agregación de tecnologías, contenidos y servicios. Y esto también incluye al mundo del libro.

La irrupción no parece un motivo muy probable para que una startup quiera entrar en la industria del libro, o al menos en la edición comercial, pero sí lo puede ser la innovación. Desde los comienzos de la transformación digital hasta estos momentos siguen surgiendo nuevas empresas y proyectos que asumen el reto de reinventar la forma del libro narrativo (apps, libros enriquecidos, multimedia, libro-juegos, transmedia, etc.), la mayoría de momento con relativo éxito en comparación con las formas tradicionales de edición impresa.

La autoedición parece representar la nueva alternativa, casi cerca de la disrupción, si bien el prestigio de la edición profesional (tradicional) sigue teniendo su atractivo para muchos autores nobeles.

¿Qué hay de interrupción en lo que se denomina indistintamente autoedición o auto-publicación? Según Data Guy se trata de un negocio de 500 millones de dólares, que en sí mismo no es una gran oportunidad agregada. Como distribuidores, Amazon y sus competidores retienen alrededor de un tercio de estos ingresos. Plataformas de servicios de publicación como Smashwords y Draft2Digital pueden alcanzar cerca del 10%. De modo que las primeras empresas con enfoque en la autoedición están tratando de obtener un recorte de 300 millones de dólares de ingresos netos. Author Earnings señala algunos datos interesantes.

- Algo menos de 10.000 autores (9.900) ganan $ 10,000 o más por año a través de Amazon.com
- La mitad de estos ganan más $ 25,000 por año
- 1.000 autores independientes que debutaron en los últimos 3 años ganaron más de $ 25,000 por año.

Si tomamos los 10.000 dólares en ganancias como un umbral para que un autor independiente esté interesado en los servicios de estas startups, el mercado objetivo es considerablemente pequeño. Pero las aspiraciones son lo que son, y sin duda muchos autores con perspectivas de ventas más modestas pagan por estos para tratar de elevar su posición. Cuántos y cuánto es la pregunta.

Cuando se piensa en irrupción, la competencia y oportunidad Thad sugiere mirar a Netflix y a su CEO Reed Hastings señalando algunos aspectos sobre la competencia:

“Si se piensa en sus últimos 30 días y analiza las tardes en las que no vio Netflix, se puede comprender la amplitud de nuestra competencia. Ya sea que se haya jugado con videojuegos, se haya navegado por la web, se haya visto un DVD, televisión o navegado por YouTube, leído un libro, una retransmisión por Hulu o Amazon, o incluso contenido pirateado, puede ver el mercado para el tiempo de ocio y descanso es enorme, y no somos más que un pequeño bote en un vasto mar.”

8. DOCE APUNTES SOBRE LAS STARTUPS EN EL MUNDO DEL LIBRO

1. La industria editorial no está se está muriendo, se está transformando. Aparte de la llegada de los libros digitales, ha habido poca disrupción (que no es necesaria) pero sí ha habido innovación (si bien aunque se puede pensar en las “superlibrerías” como una innovación, estas no se originaron en la industria del libro). Otra cosa es que la innovación ha venido en la mayoría de los casos de fuera del sector del libro. Por eso son tan importantes las alianzas con startups, así como la atención a incubadoras o hackathons que puedan ayudar al mundo del libro desenvolverse mejor en un entorno cada vez más digital, aún cuando hablemos de libros de papel y librerías físicas.
2. El gran cambio en la edición es el crecimiento de la auto-publicación (principalmente de libros digitales). Un informe de 2015, elaborado por la consultora Nielsen, revela que los libros autoeditados representaron el 12% del total de ventas en Reino Unido, mientras que en Estados Unidos, según los propios editores, la autoedición se incrementó un 58% con respecto del año anterior. El negocio de la autoedición representa ahora unos 500 millones de dólares en gastos de consumo; la gran mayoría de esos ebooks son de ficción. Con las ventas de libros de comercio de los Estados Unidos (en todas las materias) de aproximadamente 6.700 millones de dólares en 2015, la autoedición tiene una cuota de mercado del 7,5%. Se puede estimar que hay más de 500.000 autores activos auto-publicados en Estados Unidos

(muchos ganan sólo unos pocos dólares al año).

En España, uno de cada cuatro ebooks vendidos es un libro autoeditado, según el informe Global Ebook. Aquí se mantiene el poder de Amazon, ya que entre el 40% y 45% de las ventas digitales de las editoriales independientes españolas y latinoamericanas tiene lugar en esta plataforma. Este es el mercado que la mayoría de las startups están persiguiendo ahora, junto al Big Data aplicado al sector.

3. Como es de suponer –y aunque la lista no es definitiva dado que esperamos que otros países aporten startups propias de su mercado que seguro conocen mejor–, el país que más startups aporta al mundo del libro es Estados Unidos con un 53,46%. Le siguen el Reino Unido (12,13%), Francia (5,3%), España (4,40%), Canadá (3,86%), Alemania (3,50%) e India (1,98%). No obstante, como se descubre en el libro Startup Nation, una de las características de las startups es que pueden surgir en países mucho más pequeños, de economía más débil, aportando un mayor índice de competitividad a la economía de la innovación en un país. A medida que la lista crezca con iniciativas de otros países, es posible que veamos algunas sorpresas más.
4. Los “emprendedores” de las startups parecen tener poca experiencia dentro del ámbito editorial para llevar sus esfuerzos al máximo. En nuestro informe de 2013 apenas el 4 % de las startups participantes ofrecían soluciones tecnológicas para atender otros procesos esenciales en el sector, como la gestión de derechos de autor, la edición interna de manuscritos, etc. Esto está suponiendo un amplio abanico de oportunidades de negocio que no están siendo atendidas por las actuales iniciativas digitales. La comunicación y la colaboración directa entre el mundo del libro y las startups (insistimos que promover por parte del sector las mencionadas incubadoras o los hackatons es una manera de comenzar) son una de las claves del buen éxito de estas startups y valor seguro para las editoriales.

5. Muy pocas startups (15%) tienen alguna inversión declarada. Las empresas en su mayoría usan recursos propios. Según nuestro informe de 2013 sobre la relación del sector con las startups, un 68% de los emprendedores señalaba que muchos inversores desconocían las singularidades del sector cultural y que este desconocimiento generaba muchos prejuicios y malentendidos. Asimismo, un 54% de los emprendedores admitía que la mala imagen que tiene el sector por su escasa inversión en innovación en los últimos años posiblemente sea una de las causas por las que no atraiga a más inversores.
6. Muchas de estas startups del ámbito del libro no son sólo pequeñas: son minúsculas. En muchos casos no hay startup, por así decir, sólo un sitio web y buenas intenciones. La comercialización y promoción es mínima. Estas empresas deberían hacer una pausa y reimaginar cómo su empresa tendría que operar si tuvieran que obtener ganancias a través de un negocio alojado online o bajo un modelo plataforma. ¿Y si tuvieran que generar 25,000 euros en un solo año sin un sitio web? ¿Cómo identificarían a sus audiencias en el sector? ¿Cuál sería la propuesta de venta? ¿Qué haría que un cliente pagara por su producto o servicio? En la actualidad, la mentalidad común es “si lo construimos o desarrollamos, vendrán”, sin más, como si fuera así de sencillo. Una estrategia que suele ser errónea.

7. La innovación es muy diferente a la disrupción. No es que muchas de las startups piensen que están siendo disruptivas en el negocio editorial, pero varias hacen afirmaciones tales como que vienen a revolucionar el papel del lector, el papel del agente o el equilibrio de poder entre escritores y minoristas. Como dice Elizabeth Spiers, demasiadas startups “piensan que las empresas establecidas están usando modelos fallidos porque son idiotas y no porque los problemas no se resuelven fácilmente”. Muchas de estas startups están tratando de solucionar un problema que de hecho no existe. Los libros son una tecnología depurada. Funcionan. Los autores autopublicados posiblemente tienen acceso a todos los servicios que necesitan entre los programas Kindle de Amazon y algunas de las firmas de servicios de autoedición más grandes como la mencionada Smashwords o similares. Innovar para no destruir.
8. Un buen “pequeño negocio” puede ser algo muy diferente de una oportunidad de capital riesgo. Es otra trampa de la mentalidad de las startups. Si muchas de estas empresas se vieran a sí mismas como empresas comprometidas a largo plazo en lugar de pequeñas compañías que le van a dar su gran lección al mundo del libro o que pronto podrán ser adquiridas por otras más grandes, quizá serían capaces de durar un poco más.

9. Wattpad es una de las compañías que ha sido el faro o guía para muchas startups en el sector del libro, y con todo, diez años después de su lanzamiento hay poco cambio discernible que se pueda atribuir a su influencia, si bien un grupo de otras startups similares también animan a los escritores a escribir fragmentos cortos de ficción a diario o más o menos frecuentemente. Es decir, muchas startups han crecido a la sombra de startups anteriores sin realmente innovar mucho más que su modelo a seguir.
10. La edición de libros nunca ha sido una industria tecnológica. De hecho, históricamente tiene aversión a la tecnología. Este es un desafío para las startups que están dirigidas a las empresas editoriales existentes. A pesar de de todo, en esta nueva era tecnológica y de participación, todas las editoriales deberían establecer algún tipo de alianza estratégicas para poder afrontar los retos de la era digital si se quiere participar de ella. Además, las editoriales también deberían recordar que se trataría de sentir la alianza en los dos sentidos y dar a conocer tales alianzas, las razones y qué va a suponer para el consumidor final. Las editoriales son las que ya tienen las audiencias, no las startups, por tanto son las que pueden llegar a un público mucho mayor. Siendo como es el editorial la punta de lanza de todo el sector cultural, al él le corresponde la responsabilidad mayor de dar una imagen pública de transformación y evolución.

11. Los audiolibros, después de la autoedición, están siendo el nuevo gran dorado del sector editorial. En la actualidad la oferta de audiolibros en español supera los 3.000 títulos aproximadamente, frente al apenas millar de hace sólo unos años. Las cifras sobre este mercado en EE.UU. muestran que en 2015 se descargaron 3,88 millones, lo que supuso una cifra de 205,8 millones de dólares, según la Asociación de Editores Americanos. La Asociación de Editores de Audiolibros también refrenda esos datos, con un aumento de ventas del 24%, y con 9.630 títulos más con respecto al año anterior.
12. Las startups, como las editoriales, deben de pensar en los nuevos modelos de negocio que ofrece Internet a la hora de determinar el valor que su compañía puede ofrecer a las editoriales.

Sobre Dosdoce.com

Dosdoce.com es un portal que analiza el uso de las nuevas tecnologías en el mundo del libro. Desde sus inicios en 2004, el objetivo de Dosdoce.com ha sido animar a editoriales, librerías, bibliotecas, museos, fundaciones, etc., a utilizar todo tipo de tecnologías y a entender mejor las implicaciones y beneficios derivados de su uso en sus entidades.

A lo largo de estos años, Dosdoce.com ha elaborado más de 50 estudios e informes sobre el uso de las nuevas tecnologías en diferentes ámbitos del sector cultural. En noviembre de 2005 su primer estudio: El papel de la comunicación en la promoción del libro. En 2006 dos nuevos estudios: El uso de las tecnologías Web 2.0 en entidades culturales y Los retos de las editoriales independientes. En octubre de 2007 el estudio Tendencias Web 2.0 en el sector editorial. En octubre de 2008, conjuntamente con la red social Ediciona, publicaron el estudio La digitalización del libro en España . En 2009 publicaron tres estudios: La visibilidad de las ciudades en la Web 2.0 (a principios de año), Visibilidad de los museos en la Web 2.0 (en octubre) y Digitalización del libro y uso de las redes sociales (en noviembre). En 2010 publicaron el estudio Las galerías de arte en la web 2.0 y la Chuleta de las redes sociales, que ya ha superado las 20.000 descargas. Se inició el año 2011 con la publicación de la segunda edición del estudio Las galerías de arte en la web 2.0, y a mitad de año el estudio Fútbol 2.0, que analiza de qué manera los clubes de fútbol están incorporando las tecnologías 2.0 en sus estrategias de comunicación y en la promoción de sus equipos, jugadores, eventos, etc. Y terminaron el año 2011 con la publicación en septiembre del estudio Industria editorial 2.0, en noviembre, el estudio Conexiones entre museos en las redes sociales, de la infografía Derechos de los usuarios en la nube y de las versiones en catalán, inglés y portugués de la Chuleta de las redes sociales.

Comenzaron el año 2012 publicando la Cronología de la edición digital \(1912-2012\), la publicación de las versiones en catalán y euskera de la infografía Derechos de los usuarios en la nube y de los resultados de la encuesta Anatomía del perfil del editor digital. En septiembre de ese mismo año publicaron el estudio El directivo y las redes sociales, en colaboración con la Fundación CEDE y el Grupo BPMO.

Dosdoce.com inició el año 2013 dando a conocer un nuevo estudio, Cómo colaborar con startups, que reflexiona sobre cómo mejorar las relaciones entre las empresas que conforman el mundo del libro (editoriales, librerías, bibliotecas, etc.) y las famosas startups (empresas tecnológicas de reciente creación). En mayo de este mismo año sacaron un nuevo estudio: Los museos en la era digital. El equipo de Dosdoce.com finalizó el año con Global Ebook, un estudio que analiza la rápida evolución de los libros electrónicos en los mercados de Estados Unidos y Reino Unido, así como detalles pormenorizados de los mercados del libro digital que paulatinamente cobran forma en Europa, Brasil, China, India, Rusia y el mundo árabe.

En 2014, Dosdoce.com publicó 6 nuevos estudios. Inició el año publicando el estudio Apps educativas, que analiza el enorme crecimiento de estas herramientas como nuevas vías de acceso al conocimiento. Posteriormente publicó la Chuleta digital para las bibliotecas, una infografía que pretende convertirse en una guía de referencia para los profesionales del mundo del libro que quieran conocer las aplicaciones que ofrece la nueva generación de tecnologías en los distintos ámbitos de las bibliotecas.

En colaboración con Acción Cultural Española (AC/E) publicó en abril de 2014 el primer Anuario AC/E de cultura digital, que tiene como objetivo convertirse en un documento anual de referencia que analice la evolución de las tendencias digitales en el mundo de la cultura, y que cada año pondrá el foco en un sector determinado. El anuario está estructurado en dos partes principales: la primera aporta un análisis de las tendencias digitales en el mundo de la cultura a través de nueve ensayos transversales que tocan todos los sectores culturales, realizados por especialistas en la materia. La segunda consiste en un estudio de casos de buenas prácticas, nacionales e internacionales, que detectan y exponen el impacto que están teniendo las nuevas tecnologías sobre un sector cultural específico; en el caso de esta primera edición, versó sobre las artes escénicas e hizo hincapié en ejemplos de casos de éxito.

En colaboración con Biografías Personales, Dosdoce.com publicó en junio de 2014 un estudio sobre el impacto de la autoedición en el sector editorial. El estudio Autores independientes: la irrupción de la revolución indie tiene como objetivo aportar a los
